

Other Sites

Peter FELECAN

January 18, 2007

This is a “links page” containing a categorized list of sites mostly for my usage but which you can find useful:

- Personal Organization

It happens that my wife is a Professional Organizer, the first one in France. She works with both individuals and companies to help improve their organization. If you read French, you will find tips and tricks about dealing with clutter and time management on her agency’s site.

- Technical Writing:

- OpenGlobe

Technical writing, translations, audit of technical communication and communication training. For the later, a very interesting topic on speaking in public/developing your speaking voice is offered.

- Society for Technical Communication

This is where I found professional technical writers for the documentation and communication for my projects.